

Dear Zabu,

Life can be strange sometimes. Some people come into our lives and become a part of our days so naturally that we forget what things were like before them. You've been that for me.

I know lately you've been carrying storms inside you. I can't take away all your struggles, but if life ever feels too heavy, I hope you remember there's someone who quietly wants to see you win every battle, someone who celebrates your smiles more than his own.

Maybe we don't talk the way we used to, maybe that's all my mistakes, Maybe that's what I truly deserved... but nothing changes the fact that seeing you happy feels like the most peaceful place in the world for me.

Take your time, find your peace... I'll always wish the best for you, no matter what. Maybe someday I won't be there to see you win everything, being happy, but remember there's always someone who writes songs just to hear his favorite bird sing with a smile... someone who prays for all the happiness in the world to find its way to that one girl.

- prostátes

